

NIFTY SPOT : IMMEDIATE SUPPORT AT 24350-24200

Source – TradingView, BP Equities Research

Nifty experienced a lackluster trading session on May 7, opening slightly lower and ultimately closing with modest gains at 24,414.40, up by 34.80 points. Despite the subdued overall movement, the broader markets outperformed, driven by notable increases in midcap and smallcap indices. From a technical perspective, immediate resistance is observed near 24,500, a level where the index has frequently encountered selling pressure. Conversely, support is identified at 24,300, a threshold that has held firm in recent sessions. A sustained move above 24,500 could pave the way for a rise toward 24,700, while a break below 24,300 may trigger short-term weakness. Options data reveals significant call writing at 24,500, reinforcing it as a near-term ceiling, whereas put writing at 24,300 suggests that traders are positioning this level as dependable support. This configuration creates a narrow range for Nifty, with a potential breakout likely influenced by broader market sentiment or global factors.

BANKNIFTY SPOT : IMMEDIATE SUPPORT 54600-54000

Source – TradingView, BP Equities Research

Bank Nifty opened on a mildly negative note but steadily recovered throughout the session, closing at 54,610.90, up by 339.50 points (+0.63%). This movement reflects relative strength compared to Nifty. Private banks and financial institutions played a pivotal role in driving this increase, providing essential support to the index. From a technical perspective, resistance is anticipated in the range of 54,800 to 55,000, which aligns with recent swing highs and could serve as a supply zone in the near future. On the downside, support is established at 54,200, and a breach below this level may trigger profit booking toward 53,700. The index remains above key moving averages, indicating that the bullish structure holds, but continued buying pressure above 55,000 will be crucial for further upward movement. With improving momentum in private banks and steady backing from non-banking financial companies (NBFCs), Bank Nifty is positioned to potentially outperform, particularly if the broader market trend remains favorable.
