Pitfire Pizza

Z

Price: Dh49 + Dh5 (delivery)

Used: Company website

Expected: One hour

Actual: 35 minutes

Temp:

Seasoned tomato sauce, mozzarella, olive oil, basil and a dash of Parmesan. The crust is a nice and crispy, and the tomato sauce tastes great. Crispy yet chewy, just like they make it in New York.

800 Pizza

D T F Z

Price: Dh44 + Dh5 (delivery)

Used: Company website

Expected: One hour

Actual: 37 minutes

Temp:

Handmade wood-fired ovens flown in from Italy are usually the reason why 800 Pizzas are so good. Sadly, we felt a little let down by our delivery. The base was too stiff, the cheese was too bland and there was a little too much oil.

Freedom Pizza

Price: Dh53 + Dh5 (delivery)

Used: Company website

Expected: 30 minutes

Actual: 38 minutes

There's no margherita here, so we went for a Mother Earth. Its wholemeal base is soft, and it's packed with artichoke, spinach, bell peppers, mushroom and mozzarella. A great alternative to your typical oily pie that could outrage some pizza lovers.

Pizzaro

Expected: 30 to 45 minutes

Actual: 29 minutes

These chaps know their way around pizza dough. Squishy yet crisp base, the tomato sauce is rich, and the entire package is well seasoned with a sprinkling of pepper. The cheese-to-sauce ratio was perfectly on point too.

Rossovivo

T F Z

Price: Dh43 + Dh3 (delivery)

Used: Company website

Expected: No indicator

Actual: 22 minutes

Temp:

There's an authenticity to Rossovivo's pizza that can't be matched. It's as if an Italian grandmother is whipping them up for Dubai. The bases are excellent: light, crispy and slightly charred, with a tangy and fresh tomato sauce, and oozing mozzarella.
