Rubika (name changed), a one-year-old girl from a small village in a neighbouring district, lives with her parents and elder sister. Her father works as a daily-wage auto driver, and her mother is a homemaker. They struggle to make ends meet, as they receive no support from their extended families.

Last year, Rubika suffered severe scald burns to her hands and abdomen after accidentally putting her hands in hot water. Though treated immediately at a local hospital, she later developed stiffness and was not able to move her hands freely. At CMC Vellore, doctors at the Dept of Hand Surgery diagnosed bilateral hand contractures and advised surgery to restore mobility for the baby.

Her parents were not able to afford the ₹80,000 required for the surgery. The Department stepped in and with help from friends like you, the costs were covered by CMC's charitable funds including PTP. Rubika underwent the surgery successfully and her parents are hopeful for her healthier, brighter future.

Thank you for your thoughtful giving!
