Vidhya (name changed) is a 64-year-old woman who earns a meagre living making traditional bead necklaces in a nearby town. Together with her husband's old-age pension, this small income supports the family. Their only son is unable to work due to struggles with alcohol dependence. With no savings, assets or health insurance, the elderly couple has little financial security. They struggle to meet their basic needs.

Vidhya was recently diagnosed with gallbladder disease. Investigations indicated a growth in her gallbladder that might be cancerous. She also has diabetes and was advised by our Hepato-Biliary (HPB) Surgery team to undergo gallbladder surgery (cholecystectomy) to prevent further complications.

The family borrowed around ₹25,000 for investigations, travel and treatment, but could not afford the surgery. The treating team was able to subsidise the costs of surgery through CMC's charitable funds like PTP, Department funds etc. Thanks to your support, patients like Vidhya can receive timely treatment and compassionate care.
