Pandian, 64, is a cloth weaver who supports his family. His wife is a homemaker, his son works in a textile shop, and his three daughters are married.

His health took an unexpected turn after he accidentally used an oil that caused a severe allergic reaction. Despite treatment at nearby hospitals, the itching and discomfort continued and gradually spread across his body.

Following his daughter's suggestion, Pandian and his wife traveled to CMC Vellore. Our Dermatologists diagnosed an autoimmune skin condition. He was started on treatment to control the severe inflammation and allergic reactions.

With timely support from CMC's charitable funds including PTP, Pandian was able to continue his treatment. He is now doing well and remains on medication. Pandian and his family are deeply grateful for the support that helped him through this difficult time.
