

Person-to-Person

Shankar*, a mason and his wife Suha* live in Vellore. After eight years of anxious waiting, they were eagerly expecting the birth of their first born. This baby was extremely precious to them. They were prompt for every check-up at CMC. Everything changed when Suha had to be admitted for an emergency C – Section when she was only a little more than 26 weeks pregnant. Shankar knew it was too early and feared the safety of his wife and baby.

Their baby girl weighed only 700 grams and needed support to breathe. She was admitted in the NICU under the Department of Neonatology's care where she received treatment for two and a half months until she gradually got better and was ready for discharge.

Today their daughter is a happy 2-year-old, always on the go and loves to talk nonstop. They continue to visit CMC for her check-ups and treatment. Shankar and Suha are grateful for the financial support through the PTP fund that continues to help subsidise their treatment costs.
