

International Conference for Young Scientists - 2017

Students of class XII, Ms Soumya Pal and Ms Visheshta along with Ms. Deepti Sharma, PGT (Biology), visited Stuttgart, Germany, to participate in the International Conference for Young Scientists, from 16-22 April, 2017.

Teams from twenty- six different countries participated in the event that included presentation of research work done by students (14-19 years of age) in various fields of Science, Mathematics and Computer Science.

Our students presented their project under the 'Life Sciences' category on the topic- 'To Study Prevention of Vitamin D Deficiency in Students by Exposing to UV B Rays after finding the Appropriate Time of Exposure to the Sun'.

They took part in the poster session and presented their PPT, before a panel of judges on the given topic, which was followed by a Question - Answer session. They were awarded a Bronze medal and a certificate in the Life Science category.

The Conference was a great learning experience, as it included both scientific as well as cultural exchange programs.
