

Faculty Forum: 14-10-2024

Dr. G. Padmaja, Head, Department of Political

Science Topic: Democracy

Ms. Padmaja explained that Democracy is a system where people have the power to make decisions about their government. She mentioned that, in a democracy, citizens vote to elect leaders and can voice their opinions on laws and policies. It is based on principles of freedom, equality, and justice, allowing everyone a fair chance to participate. When people elect representatives, they trust them to work for the common good. Ultimately, democracy is about giving power to the people and ensuring that everyone's voice counts. She concluded the session with a small quiz that assessed her audience's attentiveness.

