2. Objective of the Program

Events cause changes in the state of the system, while the state is what defines the system at any given moment. Both are crucial in their own terms and form the basis of our understanding and operation of complex information systems.

They play a crucial role in fostering community engagement, providing opportunities for social interaction, and creating memorable experiences. Good events involve Careful planning and coordination to ensure a seamless and enjoyable experience for participants.

3. Description

Every year the Department of Statistics and Electronics organizes Inter Collegiate Technical Fest. The students participate competitively in it and are eager to record their achievements & accomplishments in their resumes. The aim of the fest is to provide a platform for the students to showcase their talents. Students from various colleges and universities participated in different events and made it successful. A poster on MIND SPARKLE - 2K26 was released in advance to publicize the event.
